Beautiful Risks

“This group of participants came in saying, ‘I don’t have friends. Nobody else is like me.’ They were lonely and scared. They took risks to trust each other and by the end had established strong relationships with each other. They leave CLIMB with a support system. They can lean on each other when their car breaks down, or when they have had a hard day at work. It’s a beautiful risk to connect with other people and takes so much courage to open yourself up, and the rewards are changing their lives.”
